8 CASE STUDY :

When ATL company moved one of their divisions to Bangalore, the branch manager in Mumbai decided to transfer those employees who did not wish to go to Bangalore to other local divisions. Ten of the thirty chose to stay and be transferred to another division. Priya was one of those. She was assigned to the computer moving – head division.

When Priya reported to the new job, Mr. Kumar her new supervisor told her he did not know whether or not he would have a permanent position for her. For three days Priya sat and watched other employees do their work. On Friday, Kumar announced that their division had received another big contract and he would brief Priya on her new assignment on Monday. Priya arrived at 9 am Monday morning and waited but Kumar did not arrive until 10.30 am. Later he could not meet Priya and at 1.30 pm he returned to show Priya the operation, "We are reworking model 10- D and it only requires changing two spot welds". Kumar added, "By the way, you will be the quality control supervisor on this job. Just double check these six spots on the blue print". He did not write on the blue prints or mark the areas in any way. Priya was given no idea how important the checks might be.

"Please – watch me", said Kumar to Priya, taking up the welding torch. "Any one can do it easily". He repeated the operation five or six times. Priya tried it and experienced no difficulty. Neither of them checked their reworked pieces with the blue print to see if they would pass the quality control check and as a result, Priya never checked any pieces after that demonstration. Kumar did not see Priya again until Friday.

During the week several things happened. More than half the motors did not work correctly by the time they reached the final assembly. It could not be determined whether the faulty motors were the result of Priya's work or the result of a lack of quality checks. A box of 20 parts had been approved by Priya since her initials were on the inspection card, but she had not made the necessary alterations. That was when Kumar found time to talk to Priya again.

Questions :

- What incidents showed that Kumar was not performing a good job as a trainer? (08 Marks)
- How do you think Priya feels about Kumar and about her new job? (04 Marks)
- If you were Kumar, what would you have done to improve Priya's performance? (04 Marks)
